NEW YORK

Best Bets

Best Bet: Soundscreen Design's Poster Frames

By Lauren Murrow

New Yorkers are a notoriously transient set, moving from one tiny, oddly shaped apartment to the next. As such, we've also become pros at rearranging prints, posters, and photos to brighten up sterile walls and exposed brick. Soundscreen Design's glassless ReFRAME lets you cycle posters in and out without the hassle of disassembling traditional frames. The double wooden beams at the top and bottom snap together magnetically to hold posters in place, making it easy to swap prints. And though the sturdy, variously sized beams won't budge on your walls, they're also super-portable — one less thing to schlep up the stairs during your next move.